WHY BREXIT LEADS TO WORLD CHAOS AND WHY BRITAIN STAYING IN THE EU LEADS TO A BETTER WORLD

FUTURE OF EUROPE SCENARIOS 2016/2025

Four identity based scenarios looking into the potential futures of Europe and their impact on UK and the world.

By Nicolas De Santis, President Gold Mercury International and Founder of BRAND EU

EU REFERENDUM SPECIAL REPORT
May | June 2016
Europe is suffering from a lack of vision and an unprecedented EU brand identity crisis. This represents a key obstacle to receiving the full support of its citizens, and is a threat to the development of Europe as a whole. Its member states’ national identities are also in flux, with the rise of nationalist movements, potential break-ups and secessions threatening to destabilise the Union, which has maintained peace in Europe for 70 years.

In this report, Nicolas De Santis, President of Gold Mercury International and founder of the BRAND EU Centre, examines how the difference between ‘Brexit’ or ‘Bremain’ can lead to four very different European scenarios that impact the entire world. These scenarios are based on peoples’ perceptions of self-identity and how they feel about supranational concepts such as ‘global citizenship’ and ‘European identity/citizenship’. The author believes that being a national of a member state and also being a European citizen are totally compatible, but require a transformation of self-identity and self-perception to accept and ultimately embrace this duality.

There is a clear scale to the impact of the UK’s EU Referendum: ranging from the disintegration and break-up of the EU (including further subsequent secessionist movements, independence movements and constitutional crises), to a very tight-knit Europe that continues to build capability for its citizens, as well as expand its borders and identity alongside peoples’ national identities. The aim of this report is to illustrate these diverse scenarios and examine what kind of future each one will bring if certain paths and self-identities are chosen. This analysis is intended to be accessible for everyone and shows clearly that the citizens’ support or strong opposition to the EU will have a dramatic impact on themselves, their community and the future of the world. As such, the UK’s EU referendum is not merely a national referendum, but a global one.
INTRODUCTION

The UK’s EU referendum is a global referendum, as it has an impact on the entire future of Europe. And therefore, the world.

As we evaluate our own personal relationship and identity with the EU, it is important to observe the different future paths for Europe based on how we decide to vote in the upcoming EU Referendum. Because of the large number of varying issues and the vast complexity surrounding a debate like the Referendum on the European Union, most of the analysis and messages about it thus far have been focussed on winning a quantitative data war concerning the tangible costs or benefits of staying in or leaving the EU. After two World Wars and over six decades of peace in Western Europe, not much has been done about the issue of European identity; or about our own personal view of ourselves as Europeans or even as global citizens. The emotional side of the EU debate is difficult to frame and understand. It covers many critical issues and paradigms (visions of the future) about our own perceptions of sovereignty and self-identity; including prejudices and ideas about diverse issues, such as: ‘ever closer union’, immigration, security, and national currencies. It is time to assess the emotional side of this debate; a side which drastically affects our own identities as citizens of the UK and Europe. It is time to decide what kind of future we want, based on how we vote in the EU referendum.
Future scenarios as a tool to understand the future of Europe and discover common ground.

Scenario thinking is a way of approaching the future that is commonly used as a tool for creating long-term strategy; normally used by private and public sector organisations as well as civil society. Scenarios are tools that are used to define potential futures and paths. They create a frame of reference that decisions can be based on, in order to achieve common desired outcomes.

A scenario exercise is innovative and important because in the midst of a deep conflict (like deciding to stay in or leave the EU) it can create a narrative that brings people together from across diverse organisations, affiliations and areas of thought, and teach them to think creatively about the common future of their community, country or continent.

One of the basic premises of scenario thinking is that the future is not predetermined and cannot be predicted. Therefore, the choices we make can influence what will happen.

THESE FUTURES DO WE WANT TO BUILD? In a situation where people feel swept along by overwhelming complexity and world events, scenarios provide a framework for decision making and provide an empowering worldview. The European Union (and many other parts of the world) are currently haunted by dramatic visions of refugees, terrorism and economic uncertainty.

The purpose of this scenario exercise is to objectively show and raise awareness among the population about the risks and opportunities that our present decisions carry on EU matters. It represents a new way of assisting the public in better understanding what the UK’s future will be, based on how they vote in the EU referendum. It provides a ‘big picture’ approach and a future vision of the true meaning and consequences of their vote.

This project is also directed towards all of the European citizens across the 28 member-states and beyond that are in need of some guidance on the future of the European Union. In this way, BRAND EU and Gold Mercury International aim to show the great achievements that the EU has delivered so far and give a portrayal of how said achievements could be further advanced, improved, worsened or even totally destroyed, depending on how they vote in the EU referendum.
SECTION 2

SCENARIOS EXPLAINED

Key questions for the FUTURE OF EUROPE SCENARIOS

When reflecting on the future of Europe, two critical questions of identity stand out:

QUESTION 1
As globalisation advances and the global population grows to 10 billion people by 2050: Will peoples’ identity become more nationalistic or will they see themselves more as global citizens sharing one planet and universal values?

PEOPLES’ IDENTITY

GLOBAL CITIZEN VIEW
+ We all live on the same planet and share common global public goods that must benefit all.
+ We are all responsible for each other in this world.

NATIONALIST VIEW
+ We all live in nation states and nation states come first.
+ We are primarily responsible to people within our nation. The others come second.

QUESTION 2
And in this globalised and complex scenario, will Europe be more divided or more united?

EUROPEAN UNION

EU MORE UNITED
+ People share both national and European Identity.
+ Interdependent nations decide together for the benefit of all.
+ Closer cooperation on all areas.

EU MORE DIVIDED
+ Rejection of European Identity.
+ Independent nations decide on their own based on self interest.
+ Focus on trading, not cooperation.
The choice of Greek Mythology to help visualise Scenarios

Using ancient Greek mythology, the EUROPE 2025 scenarios project offers four possible pictures of the future, allowing diverse stakeholders to understand potential outcomes and the most beneficial and positive future to work towards. The scenarios we describe range from the collapse of the European Union leading to global chaos, to the continuation of the European Union project as a force for good in the world. We have chosen the metaphor of the Greek mythological heroes for the different scenario titles to help with communicating the scenarios to a broad audience. It is interesting to figure out the future of Europe through the fate of ancient European mythological heroes.

The four scenarios are:

Scenario 1
ICARUS’S FALL
BREAKDOWN OF EUROPE

Scenario 2
ULYSES’ SIRENS’ SONG
LOSS OF COMBINED POWER IN THE WORLD

Scenario 3
ACHILLES’ HEEL
EU MAINTAINS STATUS QUO, RESTS ON ITS LAURELS

SCENARIO 1

ICARUS’S FALL

BREAKDOWN OF EUROPE

In Greek mythology, Icarus attempts to escape from Crete by means of wings that his father constructed from feathers and wax. Icarus ignored his father’s instructions not to fly too close to the sun. The melting wax caused him to fall into the sea where he drowned.

NATIONALIST VIEW OF EUROPE

EU MORE DIVIDED SCENARIO

The Icarus’s Fall scenario entails very high European and international risk. Following Brexit, a contagion of uncertainty continues in the UK and in other member states, inflicting further instability and economic damage. The EURO becomes the first casualty as some countries collapse, generating a domino effect and a world shock. Severe economic dislocation and political fracture compounded by other external issues leads to a breakdown in civil society and armed conflict in nascent European democracies. As the EU no longer exists, it cannot produce common solutions. Different countries scramble to be saved by nations who take advantage of Europe’s weakness, resulting in an international crisis.

SCENARIO 2

ULYSSES’ SIRENS SONG

LOSS OF COMBINED POWER IN THE WORLD

In the Ulysses’ Sirens Song scenario, nationals of EU member states believe that in a globalised world there is no more need for a European approach or a combined effort. They believe that each nation can be stronger on their own than by combining resources and power; resulting in a weakening of the combined power of European Unity. Movements like Brexit continue to arise across Europe, creating great uncertainty and division. This Ulysses’ Sirens Song scenario, when perpetuated, then leads to the break-up of Europe scenario, as hostility between European nations increases and leads to further division and fragmentation of the European Union, its peoples and its identity. The EU starts its true decline, despite the fact that EU member states have constantly been warned of the risks that this movements entail. Due to citizen apathy in European politics, increased nationalism and governments’ self-centeredness, the EU is not as attractive as it could be, and thus loses its international power, as do its member nation states.
ACHILLES’ HEEL
EU MAINTAINS STATUS QUO, RESTS ON ITS LAURELS

In Greek mythology, when Achilles was born, his mother tried to make him immortal by dipping him in the River Styx. As she immersed him, she held him by one heel. So this last part stayed vulnerable. One day, a poisonous arrow was lodged in his heel, killing this hero of war shortly after.

NATIONALIST VIEW OF THE WORLD
EU MORE UNITED SCENARIO
In the Achilles’ Heel scenario, the EU has succeeded in avoiding Brexit and keeping its membership intact. But, having failed to connect with its citizens and adapt to new challenges, the great European project starts to fall again. The leap to a more cohesive and coordinated European political union has not yet been crossed. The EU so far has contributed a great deal to European and economic stability, but remains distant from its people, and fails to renew and re-invent itself to attract its own citizens.

HERCULES’ LABOURS
TEAM EUROPE: THE EU AS A FORCE FOR GOOD IN THE WORLD

Greek mythology’s most famous character, Hercules, representing power and strength, was compelled to complete twelve seemingly impossible labours over the period of a decade, with immortality as his reward.

GLOBAL CITIZEN VIEW OF THE WORLD
EU MORE UNITED SCENARIO
In the Hercules’ Labours scenario, European citizens realise that they are citizens of the world, and this makes it easier to accept their European identity. They realise the value of the EU as a global actor and its further potential if they get more involved in debating its future and its crucial role in the world. People choose to go forward, not backwards. The EU’s identity is strengthened by this renewed interest from its citizens. Current European and global challenges lead to an increased cooperation on many fronts, generating great synergies and efficiencies in several areas. For the first time, national and EU identities truly co-exist; a fundamental factor that legitimises the Union for its citizens. With people fully involved, the whole project proves to be far greater than the sum of its parts. If this happens, there is a great possibility that the EU would take a leading role as a superpower and as a force for good in the world, surpassing the US and China in a leadership position.

COMParing the four scenarios

Impact of scenarios on key issues

In this section we compare the 4 scenarios, focusing on 6 Key themes

1 | EU Citizenship: Rights and Identity
+ What happens to our rights as EU Citizens and to our EU citizenship in the diverse scenarios?
+ Are we aware of all the rights the EU provides to us already?
+ Do we feel part of the EU Project?
+ How do we make the leap to becoming more European?

2 | EU Security and Peace
+ Does the EU provide more or less security?
+ Is NATO really the only reason we have had peace in Europe for the last six decades?
+ Or does the EU have anything to do with it?
+ What would Russia or China do if the EU disappeared?
+ What will Turkey do if it does not see a strong Europe as its future regional partner?

3 | EU Single Market
+ What would happen if we lost the Single Market and the freedoms that it currently provides its citizens?
+ How many benefits does it contribute to our daily lives and wellbeing?

4 | Euro Currency
+ What happens to the UK, Europe and the world if the EURO disappears?
+ Can we really go back to national currencies within the EUROZONE?

5 | EU Enlargement and Neighbourhood
+ As the EU already includes 28 nation states, how many more countries should join and why?
+ What is the role of Turkey going to be in the future of the EU?
+ Following the Balkan Wars of the 1990s, the lure of joining the EU is finally stabilising this region. What would happen to this area of Europe and its citizens if the EU was weakened or disappeared?

6 | The EU as a Global Actor
+ How much influence does the EU have on global affairs today?
+ What happens to the influence of individual EU nation states if they start leaving the EU or if the EU is weakened or dismantled?

CONCLUSION

The purpose of these European Scenarios 2025 is not to predict the future, but rather to define the boundaries of what is possible. But our scenarios can and must learn from the lessons of the past. We have taken the devastating lessons of WWI and WW2, when Europe was disunited, to reflect a very real scenario of a break-up of Europe and what it can lead to in an uncertain world. An awareness of the different worlds described in these scenarios offers the opportunity to the people of the UK, Europe and beyond to realise how important the EU has been in bringing stability to the continent and the world.

After reviewing these scenarios, people can ask themselves:

+ Are you more of a global citizen or a nationalist?
+ If you are more of a global citizen, do you really think that Europe and the world can afford a weak EU or a break-up of the EU?
+ Is it time to accept and embrace the duality of being both a member state national and a European citizen?
+ As a European or global citizen, which of these 4 future worlds would you prefer to see happen?
+ Which one of these scenarios will Brexit most likely deliver?

We hope these scenarios will create a common basis to understand the critical issue of self-identity affecting people in this EU referendum, help stimulate discussion and contribute to reinforce the importance for Britain to stay in the European Union.
“This is a historic vote that can change the future of the entire continent. The scenarios clearly show that Brexit generates long term uncertainty, instability and potentially chaos for the UK, Europe and the world.”
